We want to learn more about ADHD. We’re hoping you can help!

Research is always optional.

Researchers at Children’s National Hospital want to find ways to improve ADHD treatment. This research study is for primary caregivers and children.

Will the TPAC Program be a good fit for me?

TPAC Program may be a good fit for you if:

- You have attention difficulties
- Your child is ages 3-8
- Your child has ADHD symptoms
- You and your child are not receiving treatment for ADHD

Families who take part may get up to $120 for their participation.

There may be possible benefits if you take part in the TPAC Program:

- Your child may benefit from you being in the parenting program
- You may benefit from your medication

What will happen if I take part in the TPAC Program?

If you decide to take part in the TPAC program, you would:

- Receive a full evaluation
- Receive 10 weeks of parenting program remotely
- Possibly receive medication for ADHD

Contact us at 301-405-6163 or tpac@childrensnational.org

SCAN ME

To fill out screening questions now!

The principal investigator for this study is Andrea Chronis-Tuscano, Ph.D., at the University of Maryland.