Transgender Youth Fertility Attitudes Questionnaire (TYFAQ) – Youth Self-Report and Parent Report

The 16-item youth and parent report Transgender Youth Fertility Attitudes Questionnaire (TYFAQ) is intended for transgender youth contemplating medical supports that could affect fertility. The TYFAQ is designed for both research and clinical applications: as a research instrument for studies of transgender youth fertility attitudes and as a clinical instrument to facilitate youth/parent conversations with clinicians regarding fertility preservation.

Fifteen of the items (items 1-15) were derived through an iterative participatory process with transgender youth, their parents, and providers. Question #16 was added following the participatory process.

Each TYFAQ item is intended to measure an individual theme, and therefore no summary score is calculated. However, researchers may wish to compare parallel youth and parent responses psychometrically, in which case we recommend the following item-level scoring schema for items 1-2 and 4-15:

- Strongly Agree = 4
- Agree = 3
- I don’t know = 2
- Disagree = 1
- Strongly Disagree = 0

Items 1-4 and 6-16 have parallel themes between youth and parent. Find the attached “TYFAQ Youth – Parent Comparison Chart” to compare responses between youth and parent report.

Publications employing the TYFAQ should cite the original TYFAQ study:
