Time: 11:30 am – 12:30 pm

This month, the Conway Scholars will offer a lively discussion about “Why Create the Whole Enchilada - Embed your Aim in and Existing Study.”

The Conversations will be moderated by
Peter Scheidt, MD, MPH
Professor of Pediatrics
Center for Translational Science
Children’s Research Institute

*Ashley Darcy-Mahoney,
PhD, NNP, FAAN*

Peter Scheidt, MD, MPH

*Jan Agazio, PhD, CRNP,
RN, FAANP, FAAN*

The Conway Conversations are designed to engage us in lively discussions and demonstrations about developing scientific ideas, i.e., how this is done, issues that confront idea development, choices made about design and methods. This series of research discussions will focus on the evolution of several ideas. Attendees respond to the ideas and influence their development. Additionally one social or political force that influences science is discussed

Participants will be able to:

- Describe behind-the-scenes processes that contribute to the development, generation, and dissemination of research
- Examine the process of creating, refining, and implementing collaborative research
- Appreciate the social and political aspects of research and science

Nadine Camp, DNP, APRN, CPNP-PC

Vicki Freedenberg, PhD, APRN

Robert McCarter, ScD
